Video Surveillance Systems (CCTV)

There are immediate needs for automated surveillance systems in commercial, law enforcement and military, Airport applications. Although surveillance cameras are already prevalent in banks, Mall's, shops, parking lots, warehouses, Showroom's, even in personnel residence. video data currently is used only "after the fact" as a forensic tool, thus losing its primary benefit as an active, re al- time medium. What is needed is continuous 24-hour monitoring of surveillance video to alert security officers/owners to a burglary in progress, or to a suspicious individual loitering in the parking lot, while there is still time to prevent the crime.

In addition to the obvious security applications, video surveillance technology has been proposed to measure traffic flow, detect accidents on highways, monitor pedestrian congestion in public spaces, compile consumer demographics in shopping malls and amusement parks, log routine maintenance tasks at nuclear facilities, and count endangered species. The numerous military applications include patrolling national borders, measuring the flow of refugees in troubled areas, monitoring peace treaties, and providing secure perimeters around bases and embassies. Technology advances developed that enable a single human operator to monitor activities over a broad area using a distributed network of active video sensors. The sensor platforms are mainly autonomous, notifying the operator only of salient information as it occurs, and engaging the operator minimally to alter platform operations.

- DVR/NVR Installation
